CFUV celebrates its 8th birthday this issue.

Good Riddance to Bad Rubbish

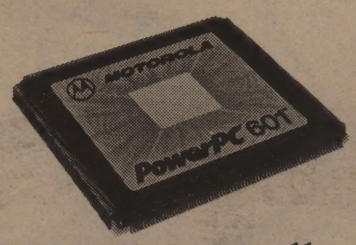
by Marcus "I'm Outta Here" Hutchings

I sat outside his little shithole apartment, the Ranchero's engine idling in a soothing heartbeat rhythm that kept me calm while maintaining my hate-on. I'll show this backstabbing, sanctimonious, passive/aggressive little anus not to return my calls. Marcus Hutchings: Editor In Grief.

He shuffled down the front steps, nearly tripping on the top one. Woulda been a fuckin' laughriot if he'd plummeted to the bottom and broken his neck. Woulda made my job a lot easier, but in retrospect I suppose it would have robbed me of the satisfaction I was due. Woulda been funny all the same. As all 5 foot nothing of this short man's complex-looking-for-a-place-to-happen stumbled onto the street, I found myself breathing hard. Hard: that was me, all steely demise and just deserts, goddammit. In seconds I would be through this little turd like a hot knife through coagulated beef tallow. He paused uneasily, perhaps sensing his date with oblivion, and lit a cigarette. Figures he smoked. Pathetic. Don't worry, little man, let me speed the inevitable.

Green light. Go. My face was an unyielding death's head in the rearview. Me, from writing news to making it in a half second. I brushed a crumb of honey cruller from my screamin' skullface, felt the surge of white death-energy travel from my swelling groin to accelerator foot. Pedal to the metal, whatchoo gonna do bout that, Mr. Editor? The impact was light, almost insignificant. I saw his face for a second, wearing that stupid look a rabbit gets when it realizes it's about to become part of the asphalt. I felt... good. Suddenly, I was no longer screaming in a vacuum. They'll hear me now, see if they don't.

The car had resumed its peaceful idle, and I rolled down the window to check if he had the audacity to still be breathing. Barely. Figures that the self important little cocktail frank would try to get the last word in. Fat chance. From now on there would be many words, many. Against my better judgement, I strained to hear whatever was to slobber from his quivering gob. "Must... get... deadline... ghekk... ack," then nothing. As his final nicotine wheeze escaped like an indifferent little library fart, his stubby fingers loosened their grip on a blue floppy disc. It would have been a shame to leave this Hallmark moment without a souvenir, so I unbuckled my seatbelt, stepped out of the car onto the gore-spattered pavement, and plucked my treasure. "Final Editorial," the felt pen scrawl told me. A swan song, eh? Sorry, little buddy, this no-doubt self-congratulatory piece of rubbish just died with you. You can't quit, I just fired you. I slid back behind the wheel, and flicked my memento into the back seat with the others. My stomach growled. Four glistening patties, American cheese, and triumphant spurts of special sauce danced in the sesame seed bun of my mind. I gunned the Ranchero, enjoying the engine rumble in my colon, all the way to the drive-thru and into the pages of history. ▲



What other computers will run tomorrow,

*Power Macintosh 6100/60 *Power Macintosh 7100/66 *Power Macintosh 8100/80

Power Macintosh runs today.

Introducing Power Macintosh: the first Macintosh computers with PowerPC.

PowerPC™ technology is changing the face of personal computing. And so are Power Macintosh™ computers—the first members of the Apple® Macintosh® family to include PowerPC microprocessors.

Power Macintosh computers deliver the raw processing speed once reserved for network servers and high-end workstations—making them ideally suited for graphics, Apple AV technologies, and computation-intensive applications. They also work with System 7™ software, so Macintosh users can get going right away with no additional training.

With Power Macintosh you can run your current applications without changing a thing. Just double-click and go. And with SoftWindows software, you can run DOS and Windows applications, as well.†

But that's just the beginning. There are dozens of Power Macintosh applications designed to take full advantage of the RISC technology built into every PowerPC chip—and developers are writing still more.

And right now you can choose from three Power Macintosh computers—the affordably priced Power Macintosh 6100/60, the mainstream 7100/66, or the 8100/80, our most powerful Macintosh ever.

Of course, the PowerPC advantage won't be limited to just Power Macintosh computers. Apple is bringing out PowerPC upgrades for many of its most popular Macintosh computers.‡

So stop in today and see the future of computing. Power Macintosh. The future is here.

Life at the 'FUV

by Magnus Thyvold

Eight years and counting. That's how long Offbeat has been hitting the streets of Victoria just about every month. We're pretty proud of what we've been able to accomplish over the years. Sure some people gripe, but then everyone who tries to do anything in Victoria ends up the target of abuse.

CFUV will be premiering it's new special needs program, Open Doors, this month. The show produced with the assistance of the Victoria Volunteer Bureau will air once a month on Tuesdays at 8pm starting May 24. The program will be produced by persons with special needs and will focus on issues and concerns of people with special needs. For the past year CFUV has been working with the Volunteer Bureau to intergrate persons with special needs into the radio station. This has been a very positive experience for CFUV, both in terms gaining valuable, hard-working volunteers and simply working with special needs people.

On the Victoria Day weekend CFUV's Musicales Postales de Latino-America will be broacasting live from the Cinqo De Mayo celebrations in Market Square. The two live broadcasts, in both English and Spanish, will feature music, interviews and events from the three day music and cultural festival. Tune in Saturday, May 21 from 2-4pm and Sunday, May 22 from 12:30 -1:30 pm for the fun. ▲

OFFBEAT Forum

OFFBEAT:

Could you please explain the following? You claim to be Victoria's "Alternative Music Scene" thingamajigger, so why don't you cover the whole thing? Anybody who reads OFFBEAT and does not know about the music scene here is basically being lied to, due to your negligence or maybe your segregation of the other side (the hardcore side) of Victoria's scene. I am referring to the lack of coverage you give certain bands in town such as Shutdown, Shiner, Breach, Nothing To Lose, and the list goes on. Rarely is there ever a review of any live show with any of these bands on the bill. Maybe this is because no one from OFFBEAT ever goes to these shows, but I know for a fact they do. Also, why aren't releases from these bands reviewed? Case in point, I sent CFUV/Offbeat a copy of SLOW TO BURN'S first release of Shiner "Slightly Polished" at least six months ago and have yet to see a review or even a mention of it. I do understand you must get lots of shit up there and can't review everything you get. But why the hell does a local release on a label not get mentioned once in your zine? If you're going to cover Victoria's music scene, how about not going about it half-assed and actually tell your readers what is happening in Victoria.

Thanks for your time,
Dave/Slow To Burn

Dear Dave:

I've heard your arguments from a lot of people around town, and to some extent, you're right. OFFBEAT could be doing a better job of promoting local talent, and as one of the new editors, that's something I want to concentrate on more. But, by the same token, local bands could be doing a better job of promoting themselves . If you send us a release that you want reviewed or if you want to be interviewed for an issue, then call us up! I know it sounds a little cheesy, but a phone call to me or Scott saying "Hey, did you get our release?" will more likely get our attention than having your project lying around in the stacks of new releases. 721-8702.

As for show reviews. What can I say? I'm just as guilty for covering non local events as anyone else around here. All I can say is that the reason that the live reviews are pretty much confined to big bar shows is because a lot of the venues and labels offer free admission to review a gig. That's a BIG incentive, and I know in the long run it sucks for the small, low budget all ages show, but that's the way the "industry" is. But also, when Breach get on stage saying "Offbeat is the weakest fucking newspaper in Victoria", it doesn't exactly give me the urge to cover them, you know? But anyway, some of your points were well taken, and I hope we'll improve in the future.

Keith Powell

I have just one thing to add, and that is that CFUV, and OFFBEAT are volunteer based. If you don't like the way that something is being run, or the lack of coverage something is getting, your input and/or time is just as welcome as anyone else's.

drowning in the Death Pool

by Marcus Hutchings

Somehow my mum had slipped me Thorazine in the morning bran flakes and whisked me off to the circus wearing a pink, frilly dress. The Everly Brothers were exhumed right there in front of me, but they were anemic and insincere. Two women who moonlighted as stormtroopers for the Orthodontist's Illuminati spanked and taunted my already withering ego. A swashbuckling fellow scraped my sinuses with a fire bell. I had to piss really bad, but held it in fear that the bearded lady would bust in, steal my clothes and throw me to the dwarves. One of the faux-Everlys got up, strutting and squawking like a sex-starved rooster. The other kept his back turned and made spooky noises with his guitar. This was my miasmic introduction to Dixie's Death Pool, a band that I doubt Victoria is ready for.

Since slipping quietly into Victoria, they have played several live shows, most notably opening at the Jad Fair show that you should be ashamed to have missed. Recently, they've released the Kool Whip tape, and have secured the opening track on the upcoming Groove Garden compilation CD.

This strange encounter unfolded in a smoky, low-ceilinged basement suite. I was greeted at the door by Pluto, a vision of Marlboro drag-queen in his straw cowboy hat and red velour night dress. He offered me a sip of his "lemonade", which tasted suspiciously like cactus liquor with a few sad shreds of lemon pulp floating around in it. Yee-haw.

After some technical delays, Pluto, Signe, Todd and I adjourned to a bedroom in order to fill up two cassettes with mostly indecipherable rantings, which I have painstakingly strung together for your reading pleasure...

A Convoluted History of Dixie's Death Pool:

PLUTO: The first concerts we did were at Lake Midnapore, remember that?
SIGNE : [laughs]
OFB: "Where's Lake Midnapore?"
S: About thirty miles south of Calgary...[giggles]
OFB: "How old were you?"
S: Grade nine and grade eleven.
TODD: We started off singing behind our parent's couch for relatives.
P: Oh, Todd, let's not recite the fucking West Coast Entertainment interview!
OFB: A heated debate over the merits of said publication ensues. Meanwhile, an ancient tape of brothers Pluto and Todd singing plays in the background. It's quite charming in a dreadful sort of way.
OFB: "You did this in front of people?"
P: We did! We did gigs at the Alberta College of Art, you can get away with anything there.
OFB: "But weren't you in grade nine?"
P: We were still performing this then.
S: They actually rehearsed this song. This is the perfected version, suitable for recording, or framing.... We hadn't met yet.
OFB: "Were your musical careers developing simultaneously?"
P: Sig did this hit single for the Canadian Lutheran Children's gathering, where they drink the blood of Christ. Todd went to school with her.
OFB: Signe's Lutheran debut, Roots and Wings, pours soothingly from the speakers. A thirteen-year old Signe croons of Christ's glory.
P: Lush production.
S: Everybody in every Lutheran church knows who I am. Another Victoria artist is on that tape: Louise Rose. This is what I was doing at this point in [Pluto&Todd's] life. I matured also.
T: Then we were in the same band class.
OFB: "What did you play?"
T: Clarinet, various other instruments.
P: He played the trumpet, too. Like, picked it up and in two months he was blowing away people who'd been playing for fucking three years.
S: You know how band class creates sort of a bond. Then our teacher forced us to listen to The Mission soundtrack with the lights off. Todd and I became obsessed with The Mission.
T: We were in the Jean Chretien club before it was cool. The sole purpose was to weave Volkswagens out of straw.
S: We made a comic for the school newspaper called "My Chaotic Liberal."
OFB: Pluto begins an argument over ownership of this title, which he promptly loses.
T: [Cutting in] We came out west, because we graduated from ACA, and I was working at Husky.
S: Calgary was getting kinda Reformy. So redneck, you couldn't get down the street without getting slagged. And I got kicked out of the Stage Band for dealing drugs to the kids.
We should mention Ken and Melissa.
OFB: "Who?"
S: Ken (Droshek) and Melissa (McCabe) are the other members of the band who aren't here tonight.
OFB: "How'd you meet them?"
S: In their apartment.
T: OK, we were playing Harpo's on June 15th. We got here on June 5th, heard about the contest on June 1st.
P: We came in third out of four.
T: Tom was our first bass player. Rick played drums.
P: Rebecca was definitely the weirdest thing to happen to this band.
S: I think you were...
P: She wore a coat of feathers... I have to draw her now.

The Influence Question....

T: Jad Fair, Sonic Youth...
P: Part of the reason I started smoking, was because Todd was smoking, and now he's quit.
S: I was smoking...
P: What the hell is he doing quitting?
T: What?
P: When is Eugene Chadbourne going to be recognized?
OFB: "Who's that?"
T: Are you for real?
OFB: As far as I can gather, Eugene Chadbourne is a Calgarian legend. His record is decorated with some sort of acid-cowboy mandala, and includes a Burl Ives medley.
The band all agree on the influence a man named "Shake", who boasts a cigar-shaped piece of hair the size of a Victoria slug on his back.
P: Shake is pure charisma. He owns the "E" chord.
S: He was Rama in the university play.
P: The Hindu community was outraged.
S: It was blasphemy.
P: [with great bombast] I totally want to evoke, one day, the feeling that one gets in their heart when they hear the Everly Brothers. Don't the Everly Brothers just totally move you?
OFB: "They're kinda tragic."
P: Exactly, like "Ebony Eyes". [starts laughing hysterically] The guy just sits there and talks about a plane crash! [Falls over, giggling uncontrollably.]
S: Get up.
He does.

Personality Profile....

T: [attempting to restore order] Okay...
P: Yeah, you take the lead, Mr. Fuckin'...
T: [undaunted] He's personable, and I'm brooding and introspective.
OFB: "Sorta like Fire and Ice?"
P: And together we're Platinum Blonde!
S: If he's fire and Todd's ice, then Clint [the eldest brother] is steam.
T: We never have fun when we play.
OFB: "You always look really miserable"
T: Oh yeah.
P: He's having the time of his life! What would you rather be doing?
T: It's not that I don't have any fun, it's just that I like to concentrate.... I'm not really interested in putting on a show.
P: Have you seen my bathing suit?
S: Wear it! Wear it!
OFB: Pluto rummages briefly in the closet. Beaming proudly, like a toddler who's navigated his first successful potty, he produces a stunning green-sequined woman's bathing suit. What a floozy.

Plans for the future...?

P: We're working on being better musicians. I'm learning the "A" chord now.

Dixie's Death Pool will play at Zanzibar Cafe on Friday, May 27. Miss at your own inconvenience. ▲

On the Toilet

with Keith Powell

In an age of excessive media manipulation by corporations with too many hands in too many pies, and where even some less than liberal journalists are getting uncomfortable with the compromises being made by editors pre-occupied with the bottom line, independent publishing has become a more accepted alternative to the large outlets, so much so that some major publishing firms have tried to tap into that market by publishing "alternative" style weeklies in some cities in the States. So it's in this context that the exploding zine scene comes as a breath of fresh air. This column will attempt to give ink to some lesser known publications, and hopefully give them some well deserved notice. Coming from the point of view of someone who's been actively involved in zine publishing for a lot of years, I can attest to how much work and love goes into the making of each issue. So let's begin...

Flaming Poutine (C.P.463, Plac du Parc, Montreal PQ, H2W-2N9) is from Montreal and reflects the city's "cultural diversity" quite well. Some of the contributors have their own projects, such as Dave Velcro from Velcro Soul and Dominec Castelli who is from, I believe, The Asexuals. If he's not tan boy is my face red! Has interviews with Bite, Slaves On Dope, Bliss, american Devices and loads of other shit. Really cool and well worth a poke...

Flour Power ($3 to PO Box 78068, RPO Grandview, 2606 Commercial Dr., Vancouver B.C., V5N-5W1) is a full on anarchist zine with a lot of the usual topics found in this sort of thing: Environmentalism, Veganism, a few stabs at the Reform Party, and Canada's silence on Third World issues such as East Timor. The only real complaint I have is that there's way too many cut outs from the newspaper and not enough editor or contributor generated material, which is too bad because Rejoice, the editor, is a good writer with a lot to say. Record, Tape, and zine reviews round out this issue. This issue came out in October, so hopefully she has a new one on the horizon...

Gee-zuz ($2 to 297-810 W. Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5Z-4C9)) has quickly made a name for itself in the past year. Formerly a monthly, lack of resources (ie. moo-lah) has necessitated the switch to a bi-monthly. The first issue in this capacity is the "Love, Hate, and Sex" issue in honor of Valentine's Day. The interviews in Gee-zuz are usually the low point in an issue, the one's in this issue with Chokebore and Pete Shelley of the Buzzcocks. The Chokebore interview failed because they didn't know jack about the band, and Pete Shelley seemed to be more interested in watching television than doing an interview. The essays written by the regular writers about the above topics are extremely well written, thought provoking, and sometimes moving. As you probably figured out, this is my favorite fanzine. They should have a new one any day now, the next one based around "Religion." Check it out...

Emit ($2 to PO Box 2499, Vancouver, B.C., V6B-3W7) is put out by this guy named Mike who lived in Ottawa around the same time as me. Once, while conversing at a house party, he predicted the breakthrough of punk into the mainstream a full year before it happened. That's what I call insight. The zine is a reflection of his and his friend's intelligent and sometimes off kilter sense of humor. The article on body modification is priceless satire, and the other pieces (stuff on the threat of the gagging of the media, a right on bashing of that fuckin' STUPID "punk" record Guns n' Roses put out, and a couple of columns about dumb stuff in the news, and various controversies in their little center of the world) rule, and the interviews with cub, The Lemonheads, Pluto, and Hardship Post are interesting, but not all that informative. But the interview with Courtney Love...I'll try to be nice considering her recent bereavement. They decided to forgo the question part of the interview and just let her go on, monologue style, about various things. According to Miss Courtney, Riot Grrrl was invented by a reporter for Melody Maker named Everett True, and Kurt, (the dead one) coined the spelling of "grrrl". Read it for yourself to get all the poop...

What can I say about Ralph (A stamp to Box 505-1288 Broughton St., Vancouver B.C., V6G-2B5)? "Coffee, Jazz, and Poetry" = pretentious arty shit. But since it's free if you find wherever he drops it off, or the price of a lousy stamp, you can't complain...

It's great that the local Riot Grrrl chapter put out a fanzine. While the title, Riot Grrrl Victoria, ($1 to 3478 Bethune Ave, Victoria, B.C., V8X-1W2) isn't the exactly the epitome of creative, you can't mistake who's behind it. But the person who put it together warns that it's only the work of two people, so it might not be representative of the local Riot Grrrls as a collective. Fair enough. Personally, I don't understand the slags the movement has taken in the past couple of years because most Riot Grrrl pamphlets, zines etc., I read don't contain the man hating, penis chopping diatribes that seem to characterize that the press always seems to characterise them as. This zine reflects the anger of the movement, and the story about the editor's experience in THIS city was a real eye opener. I don't agree with everything I read, and some stuff was factually incorrect, but it's a good start; I'm looking forward to seeing how this develops...

Satiety Center ($1 to PO Box 8552, Victoria, B.C., V8W-3S2) focuses mainly on the local scene. The bulk of the content is show reviews, some of which were reviewed by the guy who organised it. Hmmm...there's also an interview with Pressure Cooker, and some stuff on last summer's Infest thing in Alberta. The future issues, if I understand right, will be inserted into the releases of their counterpart label, Stinkin' Agnes. A real boost for the local scene...and there's a new issue of Chaos Comix (50 cents at the local comic shops - I can't find the address in the zine - am I blind?) out. By now, you should have an idea of what this is all about: sketchy material poking fun at all your politically correct sacred cows. This may be the last local issue as rumor has it that Randy Chaos is moving to Ottawa later this year. Have fun, sucker...and lastly, my zine, Silent, has had a new issue available for a while. I can't really say anything about it soooo here's Moe Hawk: I don't know what happened, really. I woke up with my head spinning and a 22 page document containing subversive commentary. I'm so impressed I'm practically non-plussed; Silent... Wow! Silent consists of band interviews, opinions and information. Articles like "The Gag Order On the Teale Trial" were stupendous. It re-affirmed my disgust with mainstream media, but at the same time made me want to be more informed, and 'zines such as Silent are a fine source of information, which if not un-biased, is at least openly opinionated. I for one will be writing in to counter the arguments against straight-edges, even though the criticisms are true. I'm truly overjoyed to find a serious fanzine that can hold may attention over a two page interview. Silent: it's nothing to spit at....Uh, yeah. Thanks Moe. I see you got the envelope I left in your mailbox. I would just like to mention that the address in the zine will be outdated by the time this issue of Offbeat "hits the streets" so if you want to get a hold of the zine, go down to Funhouse (which, by the way, carries all the zines I've reviewed) or send two bucks address to "Keith" c/o Offbeat and I'll get it because I don't have a new place to live or a PO Box.

At any rate, send a copy of your project to Offbeat c/o CFUV, PO Box 3035, Victoria B.C., V8W-3P3 for review. See ya next time! ▲

7 AND 7 IS...

By Magnus Thyvold

Vinyl isn't dead yet and 7-inchers in all colours are arriving at CFUV by the near truckload. So to keep up with the flood this new monthly column will highlight some of the discs that come our way.

A parcel of discs recently arrived from Pennsylvania's Get Hip Records (PO Box 666, Canonsburg, PA 15317 USA) Get Hip specializes in garage punk sounds with a roster of bands from both North America and Europe. The Cynics (I Live Alone) have been with GH for a handful of albums and weigh in this time with their patented full-bore fuzz heavy attack on "I Live Alone". "Hand in Hand" on the b-side shows their other side with clear ringing guitars and a 60's pop feel. The Dummies (I'm Gone), also from PA, offer up a Mersey-Beat-meets-the-Sonics.wall of lo-fi noise and megaphone vocals on "I'm Gone", a you-ain't-been-treatin'me-right,-baby song,. and "Let's Have A Party". '68 Comeback's name almost certainly refers to Elvis's 1968 comeback special. Elvis would certainly feel comfortable these two familiar tunes. Not that they sound much like Elvis would sing them. "Flip Flop and Fly" and "He's My Everything", a classic country gospel number are given the self-described "tear'em up rock and roll style" treatment. What that means is a raw primitive sound makes you think of a boozy, smokey speakeasy on the dark side of Texas. While these discs display enough personality to capture and hold your attention, The Squares Get Hip?!! from France is a little too paint by numbers to hold my interest.

Bite and Ford are two all female bands that are part of the trend that goes way beyond just Riot Grrls with women showing up regularly and in growing numbers in all the formerly male bastions of alternative rock I suppose I am being being unfair by lumping them together just 'cos of their gender but it does make sense musically as well. Bite's Canker (Derivative Records, PO Box 42031, Montreal, Que. H2W 2T3) is the stronger of the two. Although held back by sometimes weak vocals.,side-a's "Dandelion" is groovy bass driven pop with sudden squalls of guitar noise. The b-side is punk pop with, as special bonus (and a very cool move), a mucky, muddy, but exciting cover of the Subhumans' "Slave to My Dick". San Francisco's Ford (Vicodin b/w Primary Filtration - Sympathy for the Record Industry)offers up a rough edged big rock sound but the songs lack hooks. However, "Primary Filtration" has a an edgy, nervous rhythm that really gets under the skin after a few listens.

Captain Howdy (The Best Song Ever Written b/w Dino's Head - Shimmy-Disc, JAF Box1187, NY, NY 10116, USA) is Penn Jillette from Penn and Teller and a guitarist named Kramer who's not from Seinfeld. "Best Song" is a musical rant on commercial radio pap. Dino's Head is funnier and more interesting. It is essentially a spoken word piece that builds very effectively on a rhythm of comedic riffs as Penn tells the story of the too hip for Vegas P&T's first gig in Las Vegas. After several listens to Resin Scraper's Rally 'Round the Fun With... (Birdman Sound, 593 Bank St., Ottawa, Ont. K1S 3T4) couldn't get past the conclusion that this was pretty ordinary punk rock. Good, but nothing special.

Vanilla Trainwreck (Kiss Me b/w Electric Guitar - Mammoth Records, Carr Mill, 2nd Floor, Carrboro, NC 27510, USA) produces lively 90's pop on this limited edition white vinyl disc (ours is #109 of 1000). Guitar pop with a wee dance flavour.

Landslide has a funny (that's funny-odd) little record here with We're in the Same Boat Now (Private World Entertainment, PO Box 1165, Station B, London, Ont N5W 5K2). The title track is written by Bob Rae, as in Premier Bob Rae, and is a happy little folk ditty about universal harmony and tolerance. Landslide give the rock treatment here, which I guess makes it folk-rock. In their liner notes the band make a point of they political differences with most unpopular man in Ontario. They: rugged individualist libertarians, he: socialist interventionist. Just to emphasize their deep political understanding and commitment they've included the "Munster's Theme" on the b-side. ▲ the surfeit not only testifies to the strength of its antithesis, but brings it about.

the glut of artists, forinstance: testament they've nothing to say. that, through our self-conscious adoration of them, we actually prefer this mediocrity of theirs (ours).

Trust America, our steaming turd, to institutionalize the idea of artist down to its last painstaking detail, to where it's nothing more than a stance, a beaurocracy, a priesthood, an excuse. it almost makes one long for the days of court painters and vatican portraiturists. at least when it was just another trade there wasn't this agonizing burden to become an artist. today, this artistry lies in evading this tiresome desire.

not all that surprising i suppose, its most promising era (a tip-off in itself), was when it first glimpsed its doom. echoing in ways a kind of twin of its-technology-through its explosion, its snowballing of ideas, its movement in new areas, its promise of more to come...made possible partly by the burgeoning middle class. the same middle class partly responsible for its demise. only, the problem with death is the corpse hangs around forever stinking up the place. it's fine for the one who's kicked it-no more of that distasteful dwindle-but for the rest of us maggots there's just the oily legacy. modern art having decayed into what it can get away with. technology's anthology carries through to today in its frantic pointless consumerism. in its devastating waste which threatens to outlive it (or at least be indistinguishable from). its novel uncovering of ways to keep us ticking a few minutes longer, with no mind to the filth our life is sock full of (the medical profession displays how placing the highest idealistic value on life stuffs it even further down the sewer).

technology's proposed offspring (ie: the SuperHighway...something i'm looking forward to almost as much as the second coming) can be seen in the likes of Kitaj, Warhol (not so much an art-whore as an art-pimp (read: impotent)), and just the general coprophogus state of post-modernism, floundering about so enjoyably in its own jism.

and if only this floundering were interesting, but its as suffocating as the mire it loves to mock (loves to love) - another twin of its (in fact itself out of those sunday clothes) - entertainment. (television, film, college rock, "news", etc...the most beguiling and tiring of which remains ENTERTAINMENT).

pop culture's only claim to art's, is mapping out of the impossibility of having a worst.

television, forinstance, is only "enjoyable" when so gut-churningly vile it's its own condemnation. the only time it can even attempt to succeed is when making a mockery of itself. but the question remains: why bother? when so self contained and dead. the reason is it's us.

us up there on screen. this is the swill we live. we laughed once and they puke it back in our face every chance they get. and this insatiable lechering after entertainment of ours - amidst the glut - is testament to out boredom, our unoriginality, our emptiness, our contempt for the REAL...(& this? more of the same...something else you'd do better just to forget. a mote in the dustwad of the world where value is determined by comparison).

it almost gives credence to an oriental view. albeit in ad much as it gives credence to black death, or a mass pogrom...and anyway, we have the other, the real...only, how to shed this frightened and idyllic way of living it. ▲

FUZZIN' OUT with amazing Larry

"Gotham City in the Garden City"

Hey hepcats! This is quite the historic month for this column. For years now, I have been combing the globe, trying to find all the coolest sixties garage acts imaginable. My quest for '60's punk bands has taken me to Sweden, Italy, France, Britain, Germany, Spain, Japan, as well as all over the U.S. and Canada. However, in all that time, there has never been a garage band in my own hometown of Victoria. That is, until now.

The Gotham City VII popped (or should I say "Fuzzed") their way into the garage scene a couple of months ago with a look, a sound, a couple of very cool originals, and a first gig. I first became aware of these hipsters through my radio show, Garage Grooves. They would call in requesting songs by bands like The Morlochs and The Gravedigger V. It wasn't long before a band was formed and The Gotham City VII was born.

The seven (five band members and two go-go dancers) made their first public appearance at the Toaster show on March 12 with M Blanket, The Stupes, and cub. Dressed in cheap suits with matching "bat" capes and shades, The GC7 grooved their way through a set of classic garage covers and inspired originals. The covers included in the set were "The Bag I'm In" by the Fabs, "Get On This Plane" by The Premiers, The Sonics' "The Witch", as well as "The Boneswalk" , "Jack The Ripper," and, of course, the "Batman" theme which they started and finished the set with. But it's the Gotham's original material that I find the most appealing. "You're So Fine, You Blow My Mind, Baby" is garage rock in its purest form. Complete with silly lyrics and an almost Cramps-ish guitar sound, this is truly a love song for the hard of hearing. Equally as impressive, and just as garagey, is "Personal Guru." Aside from that damn groovy little hook they've got going, this song contains truly inspired lyrics. I give as an example: "...I'll take the bus/hitch a ride with my buddy Gus/I'll rob a bank/Or borrow money from the mafia King they call Frank...I get ideas from my personal guru." I find this sing-anything-as-long-as-it-rhymes approach humorous in the extreme, as well as being a truly "garage band" way to write lyrics.

The Gotham City VII line up looks like this - Mattman on guitar, Jeff the Stripper on drums, James "What A Way To Go-Go" Thomas plays bass, a cryptic cat by the name of Pat on organ; the vocals are courtesy of the "Idiot From Minsk"!?!? The tambourine shakin' go go gals for The Gothams are: renowned 70's toy collector, Sarah "Dolly-Bird" Murphy; and Garage Groove's own Frug-meister, Megan-A-Go-Go!

It looks like the Gotham Kids are gonna be playing gigs around town this summer, so be sure and make the scene (especially if YOU missed that first great show they put on). A demo tape will be out soon and a single appears imminent as well. Write to The Gotham City VII c/o Matt Gotham, 3459 Waterloo Pl.,Victoria, B.C., V8P-5S5

Well that wraps up the fuzz for this month, hipsters, so remember to tune in to Garage Groves on Saturday midnights for uncontrolled 60's mayhem as usual. I myself will not be on the air this summer as I will be "touring" Europe looking for wylde sounds and getting some kicks while I'm at it. In my place will be Garage Groove's suave co-host, Alex the Wailer, who will be accompanied by the usual assortment of late night swingers. Until next time, keep groovin'! ▲

Victoria's Ska-Punkers finally get some vinyl out. There's not a whole lot to say about them that hasn't been said before. Great ska beats, cool horns (although they could've been a little louder), and great songwriting. If these guys don't get huge, I'll be really surprised.

Beck
Mellow Gold
Geffen

Imagine William Blake raised as a folk-singing punk transient, fronting the Beastie Boys playing an acoustic guitar. Throw in some Mudhoney and a bag of pot and this is Beck.

Acknowledging the influence of blues and an affinity for early hip-hop, Beck (Beck Hansen) combines competent guitar playing with unusual beats and startling poetic images. The result is an amalgamation of twisted songs optimum for relaxing and sniffing glue. "My time is a piece of wax/on a termite/ it's choking on the splinters."

"Loser," a song reaching its 25,000th play on 107.7 FM was released before said artist had recorded the accompanying tracks, which he did in numerous garages. "Slacker my ass," Beck stated in a recent interview. At the tender age of 23, he is a self-made X'er wunderkind.

There are tons of quotable lines here, and the songs show a caustic wit reminiscent of early Dead Milkmen. From "Nitemare Hippy Girl": "She's a rainbow chokin' the breeze/ Yo! She's bustin out onto the scene/ with nightmare bogus poetry."

Okay, one track is like a Saturday Night Live skit: interminable and lacking purpose. "Blackhole" sounds like the poor boy had never seen a mixing board before. However, it also embodies his non-jadedness which exempts certain liberties such as this. "Pay No Mind (Snoozer)" assures listeners that Beckboy isn't about to begin worshipping his own personality cult. "The insects are huge/And the poison's all been used/ and the drugs won't kill your day job." Beck has three strikes against him: 1) Heavy rotation of his first single 2) a sound impossible to define, enabling to slip through the cracks in the Columbia House hierarchy and 3) blonde, California grungey good looks, all of which ensure a small, mean spirited, group of people will clamor for his failure. I defy anyone to listen to beck and dismiss him entirely; if that happens, I'll take you all on.

Bob Bossin
Gabriola V0R 1X0
Independent

Bob Bossin played with the group "Stringband" into the eighties, with notables as Marie-Lynn Hammond of CBC fame, and other folkies such as fiddler Calvin Cairns and bassist Denis Nicol. Together they floated half a dozen albums and several cassettes. In the eighties Bossin put out several more cassettes, and with his uniquely west coast sound on songs like "Fire on the Island," about logging on Meares Island.

This month he is floating a first CD, with the title Gabriola V0R 1X0 and it is like a visit with an old friend. His joyous, rollicking, pointed, sly, and passionate release is vintage Bossin: "Sulphur Passage" was written about Clayoquot before it became a household word, and features Bossin, Stephen Fearing, Bim, Valdi, and other folk notables. Other songs such as "Bill Miner" and "Cleaning Up The Oil" document our part of the planet in a poignant and loving way. His song to his daughter, "Madelyn" and to baseball legend "Satchell Paige" are presented with classic Bossin humour, as is "Chanson Francee". Bossin closes up with "People Like You", a song of personal and social commitment, and will launch his CD in Victoria on May 6. For more information, call 385-1307.

Hey kids! This month I've got a couple of demo tapes for review, so kick back and check 'em out.

Marry Me Lisa are from somewhere in America. Unfortunately, the information on the inside sleeve is sparse, so that's all I can tell ya about their background. The songs, though, on this three song cassette can best be described as being like a plate of pasta sans any sauce - they're insipid. I think the band is attempting a Gothic-rock sound. If this is the case they should take notes from Canada's (Windsor, Ont.) own Tea Party; those guys can rock. Marry Me Lisa pale in comparison. There are no good hooks to pull you into the songs and their attempts at creating a gloomy atmosphere fail. The first time I tried to listen to the music, it just kept slipping into the background, and I was more entertained watching the Ottawa Senators hockey highlights. (Yikes!)

Peacemoney is a different story. They blast full force blues-rock circa the late '70's. This is a good, solid five song effort, with straight ahead, riff- laden tunes. There is a certain earthiness to the songs, possibly the influence of being from beautiful Bon Accord, Alberta. Peacemoney don't strive for new ground with their music, and if you've ever heard a band from New York called The Lost, you'll have a very good idea of what they sound like. Peacemoney's songs are strong enough to stand on their own, and there is something basic and appealing about this style that one never seems to get truly tired of hearing. I don't go out of my way to collect this kind of music, but it's perfect if you're just sitting around with the guys, enjoying the simple things in life - like good beer, hockey and Playboy magazine.

Shonen Knife
Rock Animals
Virgin Records

If you were totally drawn in by Shonen Knife's previous efforts you may be surprised by Rock Animals. Rock Animals represents a substantial jump in both musical ability and confidence. The band has moved beyond the cutesy super simple tunes into more sophisticated and satisfying arrangements. Upon listening, the first thing one notices is Shonen Knife's increased mastery of their instruments, matched with a solid grasp of guitar pop

BUCK PETS, GUS, HORSEY, UNIX
Harpo's Cabaret
March 21, 1994

I wonder how badly it would reflect on the bands if I told you that this was probably the worst show I have ever seen? Okay, that's a bit too harsh, I suppose. I have seen The Unix before, at an all-ages show at the Corner Store, and although they have a stage presence that can be measured in negatives, they sounded good. Young, but good. This time out they stopped turning their backs on the audience, at one point actually addressed them, and even sounded a little more rehearsed. Unfortunately, identical song patterns tended to crop up, and I grew tired of them fairly quickly. Let's face it, I was looking forward to bands that I haven't seen before, and I grew a bit impatient...that's human, isn't it?

So there's this band from Vancouver called Horsey, and they didn't play at Harpo's with the Buck Pets. Actually, the Vancouver Horsey has subsequently changed their name to Good Horsey, most likely in an effort to distinguish themselves from the Horsey that DID play at Harpo's with the Buck Pets. Now, if the Vancouver Horsey are now Good Horsey, then the San Francisco Horsey would logically be...? Not even close. It's worse than you could imagine. Good Horsey good, bad Horsey bad.

Gus are cool, but should learn that stops and starts are not considered dynamics. One tempo, one volume, one long set. I went outside for a while, because by this time all the guitars were beginning to bleed together.

The Buck Pets have a pretty hit and miss songwriting technique. Generally they write the kinds of songs that you think you recognize, but don't know where from. Well, live they seem like some band that has heard their songs somewhere before as well, and play with the attention of someone trying to remember a lost name or phone number. Don't get me wrong, they were tight, but seemed so disinterested, they looked like they were planning out next week's dinner menu. Justifiably tired to the bone, I packed up my stuff and left about three songs from the end of their set. The trip home was nice, but left me feeling like I had gone out to see a show I was looking forward to, but got lost somewhere along the way. Scott W. Gray

NOMEANSNO, PIGMENT VEHICLE, FRACAS
UVIC Commons Block
April 2, 1994

I cannot apologize enough to Fracas for missing their set, but I missed the bus, and I guess I missed the boat. All accounts were positive, however, and that matters more than some reviewer's opinion. Pigment Vehicle have always sort of reminded me of No Means No, but strangely, on this night they didn't. Maybe it had something to do with the fact that No Means No were playing later in the night, but Pigment Vehicle seemed to place more emphasis on technical prowess than I remember them doing before. Still, they were as entertaining as they have ever been, with a sound that is more unique than most are willing to admit, and the technical emphasis does not impede their ability to transmit energy to the audience. Nice work.

Nomeansno took the stage, almost literally, and had to ask the audience to refrain from pushing forwards due to the lack of room and the precarious stage that they stood upon. Culminating opinions, I've decided that lead vocalist/bassist Rob Wright is an amalgam of George Peppard, Leslie Nielson and John Turner, but he plays bass like Mike Watt on his deathbed. Such a divine performance from the new double drummer, Show Business Giants guitarist equipped line-up. My only complaints are that it was too hot (nobody's fault), and, if you can believe it, Nomeansno played so long I thought I was going to die before they finished. Usually I would not complain, but three bands, coupled, with the heat, with the amount of people there, made for one tired reviewer. A Really Good Show, and I sincerely hope it happens again soon.

ENGINE KID, BANANA ROYAL
"The Death Pit's Last Stand"
April 8, 1994

Imagine story time for burnout's; crusty hardcores and young jibs clustered around the stage, sitting cross legged on the carpet or sprawled on the kindly provided sofa, everyone drinking beer like it was apple juice and offers of illicit substances. Imagine this for the hour and a half between the time I arrived at the Death Pit, until the show finally started three hours late.

I can't say much about Banana Royal. They were loud, dissonant, and the guitarist was wearing a hideous purple skirt. While everyone waited for Engine Kid to set up, the scary Riot Grrrls decided they liked me and invited me to their sleep over (gulp!). Engine Kid was impressive with a Pond-ish sound and great feedback. Everyone was content to sit and watch them raptly, perhaps because Engine Kid's sound doesn't lend itself to movement or maybe it had something to do with audience members ingesting unseemly amounts of various relaxants. Even if the bands sucked fuzzy bananas, I would have passed a pleasant evening. Worth four bucks? I don't know, but I got in free anyway...The Death Pit: a place to make new/old friends, get your drug education and maybe hear some music.

styles from the 60's on forward. This more technically and musically proficient approach does justice to the strong, hook laden songs.

This isn't to say that Shonen Knife has gotten all serious on us. Deliciously precious vocals still sing lyrics that are charmingly inconsequential. In fact, I was disappointed to find that all the lyrics are printed in the booklet. It was much more fun to try and decipher the lyrics from listening. I swore I heard "Let's make a pizza together!"in one song. But alas, it wasn't so. Magnus Thyvold

Sloppy Seconds
Destroyed
Metal Blade

Sloppy Second's first release on Metal Blade is, ironically enough, a re-release of their 1989 LP, Destroyed. This classic piece of punk is not for the overly sensitive or Politically Correct. I used to thnk the song "I Don't Wanna Be A Homosexual" was really homophobic, but it's not. It's about a guy who hasn't had a girlfriend in a long time and "You know how rumours fly/When you're a lonely guy" and he wonders how he's ever going to find one if everyone thinks he's gay. Other lyrical content includes songs about Traci Lords, being cheated on ("Germany" has some of the most bitter lyrics underneath a sing along whoa-oh punk groove), wrecking people's houses, the joys of blackmail, people who they want dead (there's a great sound bite of a hillbilly mechanic giving a band member shit for abusing his car) etc. The cover is a clever take off on Kiss' Destroyer LP which demonstrates that, in the sex appeal department, Sloppy Seconds make great music. Old School punk rules, that's all there is to it.
